

FEDERAL TROOPS
FOR ISTHMUS

Three Regiments of Uncle Sam's Soldiers Will Go to Panama Soon.

RATIFICATION NOW

As Soon as This Is Accomplished, the Soldiers Will Be Sent to the Scene.

(Special By Scripps-McLae.)

Washington, Nov. 25.—Three regiments of United States soldiers will be sent to Panama immediately upon the ratification of the new canal treaty. This move has been decided upon as the result of the growing impression in administration circles that Colombia will declare war upon the United States.

The Ninth and Sixteenth regiments of infantry, now stationed at Fort Madison, N. Y., and Fort Slocum, Ga., and the Twenty-eighth mountain battery will be sent to the Isthmus to take possession of the cities of Panama and Colon, and the various islands which the treaty gives into control of the United States.

Depends on Colombia. The sending of troops may not be delayed until the ratification of the treaty, however. If Colombia should make an attempt to send troops overland to the revolted states, this government will not wait for the ratification of the treaty. The mere fact that Colombia undertook to do anything of that kind would be considered a menace to the free transit and the dictum of the United States that there must be no fighting on the Isthmus.

The Panama canal question was again the leading topic under consideration by the Senate, and Mr. Morgan was again the speaker of the day. He declared that to the President's ambition to secure the credit of a unique administration must be credited the favoritism manifested by him toward the Panama route.

Hanna Denies Charge. He asserted that President McKinley had favored the Nicaragua line, and this statement was challenged by Mr. Hanna, who said he knew of his own personal knowledge that Mr. McKinley had urged the most careful investigation after he had learned that the Panama canal property was available.

CURRENCY BILL.

Hill of Connecticut Proposes to Permit Use of Customs Receipts.

Washington, Nov. 25.—A currency bill upon which all conflicting interests will be asked to unite was presented to the house by Representative Hill of Connecticut. It proposes amendments to the law to enable the secretary of the treasury to use customs receipts as he does all other revenues and deposit them with national banks when desired; to permit national banks to contract and retire circulation at pleasure, instead of restricting them to $3,000,000 a month as at present; to receive silver dollars into subsidiary certificates and the issuance of notes of small denominations at the discretion of the secretary; to remove the limitation upon the proportionate amount of $5 notes national banks may take out, and to impose a tax of one-half of 1 per cent on all circulation based upon government bonds.

Reinstates Clerks.

Washington, Nov. 25.—The civil service commission has found that Miss Anna Dreyer, former clerk in the St. Louis postoffice, and Andrew McGrew, former clerk in the sub-treasury there, were illegally discharged by Postmaster General Payne and Secretary Gage, and has ordered their reinstatement pending the filing of definite, specific charges. Miss Dreyer and McGrew brought charges against Postmaster Baumhoff, which were sustained, and he was discharged by the president. Then Miss Dreyer and McGrew were discharged for conspiring against Baumhoff. Neither was given opportunity to make defense.

Ware to Resign.

Washington, Nov. 25.—It can be announced that Eugene F. Ware, commissioner of pensions, will retire from office in November of next year and return to the practice of law in Kansas. Mr. Ware's decision to resign is the result of his long-felt dissatisfaction with the nature of the duties of his office. Mr. Ware declines, however, to admit that he has any intention of resigning. Ex-Representatives Richard Whiting Blum and Samuel W. Peters of Kansas have been mentioned in connection with the succession to Mr. Ware.

The total commerce of Abyssinia is about $9,500,000 a year.

NEARLY ROBBED
THE MILTON BANK

Thieves Were Foiled by the Awakening of a Gentleman Who Was Sleeping There.

There is no doubt that an attempt to burglarize the Bank of Milton Monday night was frustrated by M. R. Monroe, who rooms over the bank. He heard a noise late in the night and got up to investigate it, but seeing no one and hearing nothing more went back to bed. Tuesday morning four new railroad ties laid out in the highway near the bank and people wondered how they came there and for what purpose but no satisfactory explanation could be given. Yesterday afternoon a ladder taken from W. B. Maxson's store, a cold chisel and bit brace were found in the rear of the bank building, conclusive evidence that an attempt to rob the vault had been planned. The thieves, evidently made their escape with J. C. Goodrich's team, stolen from his barn.

Just where the story started is not known but it has spread to such an extent that even the sworn statement of the shipping officials of the White Star line that no such story is true and that the Cedric is due to arrive in New York Thursday and when last seen was reported all well by a passing ship does not satisfy interested ones.

HER HUSBAND BROKE LIASIAN

Chose Her Present Paramour, and Fled with Him for Revenge.

(Special By Scripps-McLae.)

Berlin, Nov. 25.—The elopement of the Princess Alice with her coachman has caused a greater sensation than did the escapade of the Princess Louise a year ago. It is stated that the Princess ran away a year ago with a Saxon nobleman who was tending the continent in an automobile and that she was only taken back by her husband after he wound the nobleman in a duel. He was reconciled to his wife but refused to live with her. It is said she did this in retaliation for the liaison with an actress in Dresden of the prince. She then picked out the Italian coachman and brought to her palace as her private servant and when jealous of his wife made him run off with her.

ALL STAR TEAM
PLAYS TOMORROW

Picked Eleven of Janesville's Best Men Will Play Stoughton on Thanksgiving Afternoon.

The football struggle at Athletic park tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock will be one of the best games played in Janesville this year. This is the opinion of those who have been watching the games close during the past fall.

Janesville will line up against a first class team from Stoughton the latter having been under the careful supervision of two university coaches. The Stoughton team has the reputation of putting up a stiff game and while their former defeats of the season put them out of the championship race, they have kept hard at work practicing daily and it is expected will put up one of the hardest games the Janesville men have been in. The Bower City boys will play a picked team, composed of the star players of the last two years and the men have lined up daily for over two weeks past and will go to the park to win Thanksgiving afternoon.

The game will be played independently of the high school and the local men have their friends will help them by turning out in force as the Janesville team will stand all the expenses without aid from the athletic society. The Stoughton pigskin chasers will come tomorrow with a good sized delegation, according to the reports which makes it more important that a big crowd of rovers turn out to help the local eleven.

The selection of officials has not yet been definitely settled.

Kankakee, Ill., Nov. 25.—Financial circles of this city have been stirred by developments in a mining scheme of the Groux Consolidated Mines company, in which local capital is interested to the extent of $100,000. Although the company is headed by Joseph L. Groux, until recently general manager of Senator Clark's copper mines at Jerome, Ark., it is characterized as a "get-rich-quick" concern by the Kankakee investors, who are mostly business and professional men. Several days ago Groux transferred his local notes and mortgages to his wife. Later it was alleged that the company had misrepresented affairs. Several attachment suits followed. The mines said to be owned by the company are in Mexico and Nevada. Groux was formerly a resident of Bourbonnais, a suburb of Kankakee.

CONFESSES TO AWFUL CRIME

Gustav Marx Tells the Chicago Police About His Share in Car Barn Murders.

EXPLAINS DETAILS

He Tells Just What He Did, and Who Helped Him Commit the Crime.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—In a confession to Assistant Chief of Police Schuetler, Gustav Marx, the youthful murderer of Detective Quinn, has cleared up the mystery of the South Side car-barn robbery and murders committed Aug. 30, and revealed the identity of his two companions, both young men like himself. He confessed that he had taken an active hand in the affair, and told the story in detail.

The publicity arising from Marx's slaying of Quinn in the Addison avenue saloon last Saturday night, while the latter was trying to arrest him for the very crime which he confessed complicity in, has prevented the police from arresting Harvey Van Dine and Peter Niedermier, Marx's partners in the South Side raid, and Emil Roeski, another young bandit, who is said to have been with the daring trio in other robberies and murders.

Has Killed Six Persons.

According to Marx's confession, the car-barn exploit was only one of a series of bloody robberies this quarter, or part of it, has had a share in, six deaths being the result of operations within the last four months. Had Marx's arrest not cut short their desperate work, the young bandits would have carried out a campaign of crime which would have kept them in "spending money," as Marx terms it, for the rest of the winter. Attacks on the Rogers Park car barns and the Chicago City railway barns at Seventy-fifth street and Viennese road were on this program.

The confession made by Marx is bona fide, in the opinion of the police. He gives the accounts of the various robberies in which he had a part, and especially of the tragedy of the car barn, in great detail, and his stories contain none of the conflicting statements which marred the value of Sluder's bogus confessions.

Main Points in Confession.

Here are vital points in his confession which Assistant Chief Schuetler has been able to corroborate:

Amount taken from the South Side barns, $2,250.

Van Dine, who furnished the "C. & N. W. sledge," was employed in the Northwestern car shops before the robbery.

The police found 150 cartridges for a Colt's magazine revolver in Van Dine's house, as Marx said that they would. They also found a rifle which Marx says Van Dine kept with which to shoot any policeman who might approach the house to arrest him.

Marx also gave the following information concerning crimes which have baffled the police for months.

Robbery of saloon at Otto street and Ashland avenue; Otto Bauder shot and killed by Emil Roeski while running from saloon; Marx and Van Dine implicated.

Robbery of Chicago & Northwestern station at Clybourn Junction by Niedermier and Roeski; station agent left for dead, but recovered.

Robbery and Murder.

Robbery and double murder in saloon at North and Forty-Seventh avenues Aug. 1; Van Dine and Niedermier implicated.

Robbery and assault in Peter Groske's saloon, 2611 Milwaukee avenue; Van Dine and Roeski alleged perpetrators.

Robbery of Greenberg's saloon, Robby street and Addison avenue, a month ago; attributed to Van Dine and Roeski.

Car-barn robbery; Frank Stewart and John B. Johnson shot and killed, supposed by Niedermier, Aug. 30; Marx and Van Dine accomplices.

Attempted hold-up of Chicago & Northwestern express at Jefferson; Marx, Niedermier and Roeski; fireman shot through foot.

Policeman John Quinn killed by Marx while trying to arrest the latter in Greenberg's saloon last Saturday night.

Public Inspect New Postoffice Today.

The citizens of Janesville are today inspecting their new possession—the new postoffice and favorable expressions are heard on all sides.

The doors were opened to the public at nine o'clock and by ten o'clock this morning there was a steady stream of people entering and leaving the building and the visitors kept coming during the day until four o'clock, the closing hour.

On the fifth of September, nineteen hundred and two, the first work in excavating for the basement of the structure began and in little over a year, in less than the scheduled time, the handsome pile costing in the aggregate, over eighty thousand and dollars was finished and ready for occupancy.

Today, J. B. Green, dispersing agent, who has had charge of all payments and attended to the general finances of connected with the erection of the building has been host and showed the visitors through the different departments.

Inspector A. E. Atkins, the government representatives from Washington who was in the city Monday and inspected the building, complimented C. H. King, who has superintended the construction and said that the work was considerably above the average of government contracts. There are but few things remaining to be done before the contract is finally settled but Mr. Nowlan believes that these will be attended to within the next few weeks.

Word has been received that the carpets for the office, registry and money order divisions have been ordered and that no further correspondence will be necessary concerning them.

Mr. Nowlan estimates that the total cost of the structure is somewhat over $30,000. This includes the heating, lighting plants, the furniture and fixtures. The building itself cost just $56,000, while the lot on which it stands was valued at $7,500. It is the finest structure of its kind and size in the state of Wisconsin and has no superior anywhere in the United States.

Perhaps no society of young girls in the city have more real enjoyment out of their society gatherings than do the members of the Laurean society composed of high school pupils. This little coterie of girls meet frequently and hold delightful sessions at the homes of the different members. Each new candidate is put through a series of hazings that are both amusing to the girls and to the older persons who are privileged to know anything about the mysteries of the society. Recently eleven young ladies passed the severe test prescribed by the society and on Saturday evening last they supped at their initiation with Mrs. E. D. the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. F. F. on Park Place. The eleven young ladies who have joined during the past few months are Misses Margaret Bostwick, Ada Long, Clara Belle Sherer, Cora Sawyer, Emma Richardson, Agnes Buckmaster, Lulu Fisher, Pearl Peters, Grace Bailey, Margaret F. F. and Sarah McLean.

St. Mary's Court No. 175, Catholic Order of Foresters, entertained a sumptuous nearly a hundred members of the Order and Rockford branches of the order at the west side hall last evening. Sixty-five ladies came from the Line City and the remainder from the Illinois town. During the meeting which was entirely a social gathering, there were addresses by several speakers prominent in society work and after the program an elaborate course banquet was served. Covers were laid for one hundred and eighty-five. At eleven o'clock the guests departed and the visitors were delighted with the entertainment that had been provided. Two well known society speakers were the Misses Annie E. Dally and Katherine Goggin of Chicago. Mrs. Nash, Rockford also took part and Miss Byrne of Beloit gave an address. The subjects of all the speakers' talks were timely and interesting and they held the attention of their hearers throughout the evening.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Herpicide.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of dandruff and to prevent itching by feeding the germs which cause it with Cantharides, Vaseline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Vigors.

Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

It is the original and only genuine scalp germicide manufactured. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

ANOTHER TALK ON LAND LAWS

SIX HUNDRED AND FORTY ACRES TOO MUCH.

WESTERN LAND DECREASING

With Irrigation by the Government, It Will Be Valuable Very Shortly.

There will be a great battle in this congress over the repeal of the land laws. It is a question of direct personal interest to every American citizen, and every American citizen should make it his business to understand the merits of it.

Under the Desert land law, an individual can take up 320 acres without living upon it a day or an hour. A man and his wife can take up 640 acres, equal to a square mile, of the most fertile soil in the world in this way.

The question is do the American people want to give their land to anybody save an actual resident who locates for the purpose of making a home and realizing an independent living? It is good public policy to encourage the acquisition of land by enterprising speculators who expect to sell it at a large profit to the real settler, or to rent it to a tenant farmer, or to consolidate it with other cheaply acquired holdings into a large estate.

These are questions which are being asked of congressmen and senators at Washington. They are questions which affect the people of the east as well as those living where the public lands are located.

Now, why does this question come home to every freeman in this country? Simply because this land now belongs to all the people. It is the heritage of every American child.

It is such in no merely sentimental sense, but in the most downright practical way. It represents his hope of getting a chance to work for himself on his own land, of making a competency for old age, and of leaving productive property for his children.

Not Homemaking Laws. This hope is defeated by existing laws under which the most valuable agricultural lands are being absorbed at an unprecedented rate for speculation and monopoly. And there is no way of preventing it so long as these laws remain upon the statute books. They were not intended to foster real homemaking, except by a most uncertain and indirect process, and in their actual application they do not usually produce this result.

This is the truth about the Desert Land law, as it is known to everybody who has seen it in operation. If it was necessary once, as a means of tempting capital to speculate in the development of new countries, it is no longer necessary because Uncle Sam himself has taken off his coat and gone to digging ditches in order to assist the masses of the people in getting homes on his estate.

What is proposed as a substitute for the present law? An amendment of the homestead law, by which a settler may initiate his filing before the water is on the land, and obtain title only when he lived upon and cultivated the land in good faith for five years. This plan will work no hardship whatever upon the actual settler, but it will shut the door on the speculator and render it extremely difficult for syndicates to consolidate many small holdings into a few large ones.

Small Farms Should be Encouraged. There is another question which some of the western legislators will have to answer: Why should anybody be permitted to acquire 320 acres of irrigated land? Why should a single family be permitted to take 640 acres through the filing of husband and wife? Is that amount of irrigated land essential for a prosperous home?

In Utah, according to the census figures, the average farm unit is 27 acres. And Utah is in the temperate zone, with a much shorter growing season than many other parts of the arid region. The utmost limit which any single family should be permitted to acquire is a quarter section, or 160 acres of irrigated land. There are many places where a limitation of 80 acres, or even 40 acres, would be far more reasonable.

Is good public policy to give a single family an amount of irrigated land which would comfortably support from eight to sixteen families? That is what we are doing when the law is strictly complied with, while there are instances where single families have acquired the ownership of lands which would support ten thousand people. This has been done, of course, through the shameful abuse of the law.

Lands Going Rapidly. The question is before the country, awaiting the decision of the people's representatives in congress. It is a live issue today, but it is one which will remove us from the field of discussion. That is to say, all the best lands will be gone unless action is taken without much more delay. They are being taken now at the rate of about 7,000 acres a day.

The battle is between human need and human greed. Every man who wants his country to be as wise as most ordinary business men, and every man who wants his share of the public land for himself or his children, should stand by the president of the United States in his demand for the immediate reform of this crying evil. WILLIAM E. SMYTHE.

LABOR TALK FOR WORKMEN

Five manufacturing corporations, of Southbridge, Mass., employing 1,887 hands shut down Nov. 10, and established a lockout against labor unions recently formed in the town.

A lockout threatening to effect 30,000 men in Cincinnati is imminent on account of trouble between the Journeymen Plumbers union and Master Plumbers association.

The Longshoremen's strike of Mobile, Ala., which has been on for some weeks has been ended. The strikers will return to work at prices prior to their walk out. About 1,000 men were affected.

Notices were posted in the cotton mills of Fall River, Mass., announcing a general reduction of 10 per cent in wages to take effect Nov. 23. About 30,000 hands are affected.

In the state of Rhode Island in 1900 there were fifty-four establishments in the woolen and worsted business, employing 15,277 people. While this number are unorganized, there are 20,000 more cotton operatives who are not unionized, making a total of between 30,000 and 40,000 unorganized wage earners in that industry in Rhode Island alone.

Under the new agreement between the master plumbers and the journey men plumbers of Scranton, Pa., a standard rate of wages of $3.25 a day will be paid, the work men having previously received $2.50 and $2.75 a day. The agreement dates from October 10, 1903, and is binding for three years, during which time the master plumbers are privileged to run open shops.

On account of trouble with their machinists, twenty boot and shoe factories at Quebec have closed.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

How To Find Out. Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; as sediment or anything indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do. There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes the unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Partly cloudy Thursday and probably snow.

Partly cloudy Thursday and probably snow.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

It is well for the nation as well as individuals to turn aside occasionally and give a little thought to gratitude and so the time that is spent tomorrow, in calling to review the blessings of the year, will be time well spent.

To the nation the year has been crowned with prosperity and sanctified with universal peace. What ever may have appeared on the horizon suggestive of strife has been like the cloud the size of a man's hand which has not developed but instead, has vanished under intelligent and Christian treatment.

The era of prosperity which has been a marked feature in American life during the past four years, continues, but on a more substantial basis for the tide of speculation has been checked during the past twelve months, and the nation is on better footing than ever before. This is occasion for gratitude.

While no great wave of moral reform has swept over the land the cause of right has not been neglected and the year records a spirit of philanthropy and an upward trend in character building.

THE STATE.

The state has kept pace with the nation, and the commonwealth was never more prosperous than today. The people of Wisconsin do not always appreciate their surroundings and the fact is frequently overlooked that no state in the union is more highly favored.

Diversity of industries is without a rival. There are no large centers of population, and poverty, as well as crime, is practically unknown. There is but little strife between capital and labor, and the year just passed, has been one of industrial peace, with rare exception.

The state has always been noted for conservatism and level headed common sense, and while she has drifted a trifle from her moorings there is nothing to indicate disaster or a desire to experiment with untried theories.

The man who lives in Wisconsin in this year of our Lord nineteen hundred and three has occasion to be thankful for citizenship in the best state in the union.

There are several reasons why the city should be gratified for the blessings of the year. It has been free from epidemic and wide spread disaster. While many of its older citizens have passed away, death has made but few inroads in the rank of active workers.

The city has enjoyed financial prosperity and the reputation of her business men for honesty and stability was never better than today. Her industries have been increased and while development along this line is slow the city is gradually coming to the front as a manufacturing center. Her schools and churches are keeping step with the progress of the age and intelligence and morality are on the upward trend.

The citizens may be thankful too for an honest city administration, due to the fact that they consented to sacrifice partisanship to the common good and came together on the broad platform of citizenship. No whisper of dishonesty has been heard, and charter provisions have been observed to the letter. It is to be hoped that the experiment will prove so satisfactory that it will long be continued, and the best ideal of city government realized.

THE HOMES.
The homes of any city speak volumes for it, and Janesville has long been noted for its large percentage of comfortable homes. They lend to the city an air of thrift and contentment that tell of economy and happiness.

More people own their homes in Janesville, than in any city of similar size in the state. Many of these homes are old land marks which have been occupied by the same family for a generation or more. The associations are sacred, and as the children and friends gather around the old table tomorrow and call back the experiences of other years, there will be occasion for gratitude and thanksgiving.

It is well to remember on this anniversary that there are some homes that are destitute because of poverty and misfortune and that others are filled with sorrow because of vacancies which have occurred during the year.

The spirit of genuine Thanksgiving prompts to helpfulness by a word of good cheer, or an open hand. The effort costs but little, but it may mean courage to the disheartened, and comfort to the disconsolate. Every home should share a day of gladness on Thanksgiving day.

THE INDIVIDUAL.

The unit of the home, the city, and the nation is the individual, and the life that fails to discover, at least once a year, some occasion for gratitude, is a barren life indeed. The year has been rich in opportunity, and the blessing is so common that it has been shared by every condition of life. The boy and girl who regard school life as a drudgery, are slighting opportunities which will never come to them again.

The young man who is standing at the threshold, ready for his first venture, is greeted by opportunities, and so all along down the line from young manhood to maturity age, the year just closed has been rich in opportunities.

They may not have been discovered, and ability may have been lacking to grasp them, but they have lined the pathway as never before.

It is a good time for the individual heart to be thankful, and a little introspection will reveal plenty of occasion for gratitude.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

The Gazette published yesterday an announcement concerning an evening school, to be established and conducted under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. This is a move in the right direction, and while it may be somewhat experimental for Janesville, it is the same kind of work in which the association is engaged in many other cities.

There is a large class of young men in every city who are only half educated, and Janesville is no exception to the rule. These boys leave school either through choice or necessity long before graduation day, or if they remain and finish the course of study they still lack many requirements that the business and industrial world demand.

This class of young men are found in shops, stores and offices employing their time with the first occupation that presented. Many of them cannot write an intelligent letter, or a legible hand, and they are woefully deficient in reading and mathematics.

They are starting in life so late, handicapped that opportunities will be missed at every corner. And these young men need is a business training along the lines of every day demand and this is what the Y. M. C. A. proposes to furnish.

It is infinitely better for a boy to spend a few evenings in an effort to improve his mind than to be a failure on the street or a hanger on at the saloon. The former develops brain and mind, the latter degenerates both.

The Y. M. C. A. evening school should be well patronized. It is not a money making venture, but is purely a work of philanthropy.

WHY WE SHOULD BE THANKFUL

That we are alive.

That we are sober and disposed to work.

That we are surrounded by opportunities.

That life may be made happy if we cultivate cheerfulness.

That we live in the best city in the state.

That we are permitted to enjoy the benefits of a reform administration.

That the stone crusher is no longer a temptation to evil doers.

That the state promises to survive the shock of theoretical reform.

That the nation is prosperous and the outlook encouraging.

That turkeys are only 20 cents per pound, and Thanksgiving comes but once a year.

PRESS COMMENT.

La Crosse Chronicle: Why these great gods of silence regarding the freight rates? Have the governor and his organs shared the misfortunes of the Kaiser?

Neenah Times: Of course it is none of our funeral, all this, g. o. p. factional scuffling, but The Times would modestly suggest that they go way back, take a Baensch and sit down.

Menasha Record: If the governor keeps on appointing newcomers to the state to fat salaried jobs, some of the faithful will get to wondering with Plannagan of sacred memory: "What are we here for?"

Racine Journal: It is clear no administration is entitled to credit for economy were the apparent saving in taxes in one way is made up by increased receipts from corporations and wind fall from the general government.

Madison Journal: The Milwaukee Free Press wishes the opposition to Governor La Follette would address itself to his principles and let alone the personal factor. Just what does the gentleman stand for that cannot now be secured through another candidacy?

Wausara Argus: The politicians do not quite agree as to whether Governor La Follette deserves a reelection to the office of governor or whether he wants to succeed Senator Quipples, or both. There is one thing they do agree on, and in which they are probably right, and that is that he wants some office.

THE PROCLAMATION

The Gazette presents in this issue a facsimile of the original Thanksgiving proclamation. The first Thanksgiving proclamation issued by a president of the United States of which there is any record and facsimile, was that by President Washington, in 1795, and shown herewith. The original draft was by Alexander Hamilton, then secretary of the treasury of the United States. It was engrossed by Edmund Randolph, of Virginia, secretary of state, who succeeded to that office upon the resignation of Thomas Jefferson in 1793. The date of its observance (in the seventeenth and eighteenth lines of the text) was written in by President Washington after its engrossment.

When this proclamation was issued, the United States was fraught with danger from every side. The federal and republican parties were in constant conflict, and the bitterness of their dissensions shook the country to its foundation. The records of the Plymouth Colony show the celebration of days of thanksgiving in 1651, 1658, 1680, 1689 and 1690. The earlier observances were at different seasons of the year, and for special reasons, such as the arrival of ships with provisions and new colonists.

In 1680 the form of the proclamation for Thanksgiving indicates that it had become an annual custom, more generally for harvest, hence came in the fall of the year.

SAYS SCHWAB OFFERED BRIBE

BIDS MORE THAN MARKET PRICE

Declares He Was Willing to Purchase Bonds at Figures Far Above Their Actual Value on the New York Stock Exchange.

New York, Nov. 25.—The hearing of the complaint of the first mortgage bondholders of the defunct United States Shipbuilding company was full of sensations. Direct charges of bribery were made against Charles M. Schwab. It was charged that the Bethlehem Steel company, at the instigation of Charles M. Schwab, charged the shipbuilding company such high prices for steel forgings that it was impossible for it to compete with rival builders.

Changes Bids.
The climax of the sensations came when it was alleged that when the company, a practical shipbuilder, had prepared bids for two new battleships, at figures that, as afterwards proved, would have given the United States Shipbuilding company contracts worth $3,000,000 and established its credit on an unassailable basis and saved it from the disaster that afterwards overtook it, Max Pam, the attorney for Charles M. Schwab, made out bids which made it absolutely certain that they would be rejected.

Precipitates Collapse.
These amended bids, prepared by a lawyer, were submitted against President Nixon's opposition. This caused his resignation and resulted in the shipyard combination getting the contracts and, according to allegations, this action precipitated the collapse of the United States Shipbuilding company.

Another feature of the proceedings was the statement by Lewis Nixon that of the $5,000,000 additional stock issued when the company was reorganized to take in the Bethlehem company, $1,000,000 went to Max Pam, Mr. Schwab's counsel, and $1,000,000 each to Mr. Nixon, Mr. Dresser and the Trust Company of the Republic, leaving $1,000,000 the disposition of which he did not know. He did not know whether Mr. Schwab obtained it.

Accuses Schwab of Bribery.

The direct charge of bribery against Charles M. Schwab was made by Attorney Undermyer, who brought out the fact that at the time the Sheldon reorganization plan was under consideration Schwab offered to purchase $100,000 bonds, with the accompanying bonus of 25,000 shares of common and 25,000 shares of preferred stock, issued to Lewis Nixon, for $30,000, while the market value was far less than this. Mr. Undermyer made the direct charge that this was the offer of a bribe to induce Nixon to agree to the Sheldon plan of reorganization. Instead of the plan for an assessment of stock, which he had previously advocated. The offer was shown in two letters of Mr. Schwab to Joseph H. Hoadley.

Recuperative Power.

Man's recuperative power after an injury is in an inverse ratio to his social advancement.

THIRTEEN ARE KILLED IN MINE

Gas Explosion Brings Death to Many at Bonanza, Ark.

Fort Smith, Ark., Nov. 25.—Thirteen miners were killed and great damage was done by an accidental explosion of gas in a coal mine at Bonanza, Ark., twelve miles from this city. At nightfall only six of the victims had been recovered. The explosion occurred at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. There were about 175 men in the various shafts at the time. All escaped without injury except the thirteen who were employed in entry "K." The scene of the explosion. The force of the explosion was terrific and timbers were torn from the walls of the passages for several hundred yards. It is thought that the gas was accidentally ignited by a miner's lamp. The miners who escaped, with the aid of others summoned from nearby shafts, immediately set about clearing the passages in the hope that some of the thirteen entombed men might have survived the explosion.

COUPLE ARE BURNED IN HOME

Aged Husband May Have Committed Murder and Suicide.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 25.—The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, 60 years old, were burned to death in a fire which consumed their home. The couple lived alone outside of the city limits. There is a strong suspicion that the fire was accompanied by a murder and suicide. The Smiths had not lived happily together, and only last Saturday Mrs. Smith told a neighbor that she was afraid of her husband; that he had threatened her, saying "If it were not for the law I'd murder you." Smith also had told this neighbor that he intended to get rid of his wife.

A CUP OF TEA.

Mr. Frederick Bingham, of the Big Horn mine, was the detrimental member of an old New York family, far too proud and united to be willing to own to the world that it had failed in the person of its eldest son. Therefore his brothers, sagacious, responsible men, and conscientious, for the most part, in the use of their name, had never questioned but it was his right to use it for Fred—to repair his mistakes, and cover up his failures, and procure him another chance; and for years, with constant devotion to the private before the public obligation, to sentiment before principle, they had saddled the family problem, in the person of their unremunerative brother, upon one hopeful young enterprise after another of the broad and charitable west.

This little daughter's letters followed him, from this remote mining camp, or cattle station, to the next one, inclosed in long, fluent, circumstantial epistles from her aunts, explaining and apologizing concerning matters relating to the child to which he had never given a thought, or had forgotten all about. These he glanced over and smiled at, and often did not trouble himself to read. After a time his brothers were informed, in dignified phrases, that he had "resigned" from the disappointing affairs of the new scheme which he had last had in charge, and he presently returned, and was on their hands once more; a little older and fatter, a little harder in the expression and looser in the structure of the face, and a trifle less sure of himself in the company to which he was bred; and his sisters winced and blushed at his free comments upon themselves, the life of the home and of the east, as it appeared to him after an interval of absence; and his mother wistfully took note of her boy's gray hairs and his old, tired, unspirited appearance, but would not discuss him or hear him criticised; and his brothers pointedly requested him to pay a visit to their tailor, and they sometimes forgot to mention to mutual dinner-giving friends that Fred was in town. Yet they thought he might be presentable enough, according to western standards. He had, at his best, a good manner, a trifle out of date, to be sure; he had the indurate remains of an expensive education; he drank too much, undoubtedly, though that was not an exceptional failing with the men of their set. They did not conceive the manner of his drinking when he was at his lonely posts of unwatched responsibility; how he drank alone, and continued idiotically replenishing, in solitary boredom; how he drank with his inferiors lest they should think him proud, and with his superiors, of course, because at an isolated mine the manager's "boys" are his sole companions and sometimes better-bred men than himself; nor the perilous stuff that a man drinks at those attitudes, who is careless of himself. "These things the mother's heart divined, ablinkingly, without a question or a fact. But the prosperous eastern brothers, sensible of the continental scope and importance of their own affairs, thought that a second-rate man might do well enough for such places as they sought for Fred. It could not be expected that first-class men would be willing to exile themselves to holes and corners of the earth, at any price. So the good name, and the good manner that was not quite up to date, and the family influence, were in requisition once more to cover up the inner facts of Fred's latest failure (what the facts were his brothers hardly knew, and they had not been very particular in their inquiries), and he was passed on, like a counterfeit coin, to his next opportunity, at some other person's expense.

Of late years friends of the family had hesitated to ask: "What is Fred doing now?" He changed his occupation so often—or it seemed so often to persons who thought of him only once in three or four years; and they said to one another: "What a mercy that he has never married again!" and they bethought them that they must "do something" for that pretty creature, his daughter, and perhaps were a trifle relieved, on casting up her years, to remember that she could not be more than a schoolgirl, and there was plenty of time. And her aunts were such very sensible women—no doubt they were bringing her up to a fit sense of what her father's daughter might have to look forward to; which they were not doing at all, but were petting her, and making as much ado over the child as if all the good fairies had met at her christening. They were not even attempting to revise her innocent impressions of a parent known to her chiefly through his munificence in gifts and pocket-money. Her aunts never told her of the carelessness that went with the munificence; of the upsies, when there were no remittances even for shoes and school-bills; nor how often their own private means had been drawn upon, to spare the little inheritance that they held in trust from their sister to her child. This money, they were resolved, should not be touched, neither principal nor interest, while they were its custodians; and in this way alone they showed their prudence. For why should she need to know, poor child, what the world said of her father? They themselves did not pretend to know or to judge him, but always, for the sake of their sister who had known him and had been silent to the last, they too were silent. What the child's own mother would never have told her, they believed that they, who stood in the mother's place, had no right to tell her.

When at last they were startled by their brother-in-law's unexpected demand that his daughter should follow him into the far west, they knew not what to say. They had no objections that they could dare to offer now, and they had no rights in the child herself, that they could set against the right of a father; and Faith, as any girl would be, was wild to go. They watched and prayed, feeling as if some unhallowed bargain, transacted long ago, in which an unconscious life was the innocent forfeit, had been fatally foreclosed. And they had made no effort to prepare the girl for whatever surprises, or shocks, or ordeals, this foreclosure involved. They could not have said just what it was that they feared—simply they did not trust the man, her father, and they greatly feared the life to which he was taking her. But they never questioned that she must go.

Those gentle, unassertive, maiden mothers who, with more than maternal unselfishness, had fulfilled every duty and made every sacrifice for their sister's child, yielded her up to the natural tie, and every one said that it was well done. A few outspoken old gentlemen who had no daughters of their own, and one or two defrauded young ones, declared it was a shame; but the wives and mothers generally said that it was the right place for Faith; all the more if, as was hinted, her father was not in all respects just what he should be. So, with no more preparation for the experience before her than girls have who go to the altar with men they are expected to reform, Faith had journeyed blithely westward, to cast in her life, in the somber solitude of the Big Horn, with that of the dull, hard, careless, coarse old man on whom her instinct had conferred every grace and dignity of fatherhood.

And now, with her first trouble, her woman's defensive strength of silence came to her, and her letters to her aunts were models of pious deception. "To one person only had she uttered a word of all her heart's shame and indignation, and that one, as she remembered with a burning face, had been all too ready to listen.

At the Big Horn mine on Tuesday night, there were indications that the manager was expecting guests to dinner. He had put on his senatorial black frock suit, a white stiff shirt, and a nightgown, with a large diamond sparkling on the full-blown folds of silk. Faith was reluctantly lovely in the most reserved of her simple, dainty dinner dresses. Her simplicity annoyed her father. He would have had her come before him like Esther before the king. The table was set for six persons, and there were three wine glasses at each plate. There were no flowers, nor any little feminine touches about the rooms, to show that the fair daughter of the house had taken either pride or pleasure in preparing for her father's guests; nor was there in her face any of the brightness of happy expectancy.

Mr. Bingham was reading in the library off the dining-room, when Faith entered by the curtain-draped door, which half revealed the table, aglow with candles and gleaming with glass and silver. The manager was a luxurious provider; he loved that his household should fare sumptuously and dress bravely, and he was not behind in setting a prosperous example.

"Father, may I speak to you about something?"

Mr. Bingham turned to his daughter with a slightly forced look of amiable interest. "Certainly, my dear. Nothing unpleasant, I hope."

"Oh, yes; it is unpleasant. It is about Abby. I wish you would tell me what she did do before I came. I can never ask her to do a thing but she is perfectly amazed. She says she never waited on tables when you gave dinners—

"Oh, yes, she did, but—you needn't say I said so. She makes a distinction in her own mind, very likely, between waiting on men—who are supposed to be helpless creatures, anyway—and waiting when a lady sits at table and gives orders. You haven't struck her right, that's all."

"Why, father, I cannot speak to her! I positively erige to her, now. She has the most extraordinary manners! If I meet her she never steps aside; she pushes ahead, and I simply retire to avoid a collision. She goes out and in at the front door, and sits on the front porch; she doesn't think of rising if I happen to come out—she doesn't see me. She answers the bell or not, as she pleases. I have opened the door, myself, to men who have asked if 'Miss Steers' was in, evidently expecting that I should call her; which I did! I thought it a joke at first—on the country and the way we live. But it's getting past a joke. To-night, with four men to dinner, I took it for granted that she proposed to make herself useful. I didn't ask her to wait on table; I thought it safer to assume that she would condescend that much. But I gave her a few hints which she certainly needed—I was as pleasant and as careful as I could be—and she flew up in a perfect rage. I was obliged to leave the room."

"Now, what are we to do? You know what a scramble it is when Wan has to come in; he has all he can possibly do with his dinner. I would wait on table myself, but, father, for your sake, I cannot do such things with Abby in the house. Send her away, and I will do her work—I almost do it now—but I cannot do it, for your own sake, father, so conscientiously."

"In Heaven's name, who has asked you to do Abby's work! Do you suppose I want my daughter to do the work of the house?"

ONE WORD IN TIME

Is Better Than Two Afterwards. A Chance to Profit By a Janesville Man's Experience.

It is a strange thing how people will put away an opportunity until too late; it's only little things that go to make up our every day existence; the trouble is we don't pay sufficient attention to them. Backache is a little thing. Sometimes it comes after a hard day's work or a slight cold. It will pass off, you say; it's only the result of overtaxing your back, but your kidneys. The exertion or straining has interfered with their delicate mechanism. You call it backache, but it really is kidney ache. If the kidneys are not relieved, chronic disorders set in and this is where the "little thing" should not be passed over. A Janesville man has learned to appreciate what delay means.

Mr. H. W. Rodgers, carpenter of 210 South Main street says: "My wife had kidney complaint and rheumatism for five years suffering a great deal from pain across the loins. Doan's Kidney Pills, sold by the People's Drug Co., brought much longer for and gratifying results. First there was no visible change and she came to the conclusion that they were like all other remedies she had tried but finally the aching and the distress in the small of the back disappeared."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for U. S. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

Bright's Disease and Diabetes News

San Francisco, Nov. 17th. To the Druggists of Wisconsin.

Dear Sirs:—The discovery in this city of a new diuretic is saving thousands of lives. It is hard for people to believe who are not eye witnesses. You as a brother druggist well know that up to this time chronic Bright's Disease and Diabetes have been necessarily fatal. It is so no longer. And I not only know this by being on the ground but I was also one of the patients. I had both Bright's Disease and Diabetes and looked upon death as inevitable. I was so prejudiced I wouldn't buy the new treatment. I couldn't believe it. So they gave it to me to prove it. I not only recovered but have since given it to some where near fifty patients and know of only three or four failures.

I am a pioneer druggist of this city have been doing business on my own premises for forty-eight years, and I now declare to you on the honor of a brother pharmacist the absolute curability of these dread diseases in about nine-tenths of all cases unless the business men who are placing it before the world have appointed you to represent them in your city, and I beg to tell you that there are lives to be saved and friends to be made.

Yours sincerely,

CARL D. ZEILE.

We sent for the Fulton Compounds with which the above refers and now have them in stock. They are the first cures the world has ever seen for chronic Bright's Disease and Diabetes. Free pamphlets. PEOPLE'S DRUG CO. & KING'S PHARMACY, Janesville

BEWARE OF PIE AND SINKERS

Hurry-Up Lunches Pave the Way For Years of Suffering.

Doctors have preached against it, Britishers have written scathing articles about it, wives and mothers have crusaded against it—and yet the deadly "hurry-up lunch" marches on.

The fascinating, doughnut, the alluring "sinker," the irresistible triangle of foundry pie, washed down by gulps of cold milk or hot coffee or lead water, continue on their deadly way to the stomachs of thousands and thousands of America's hustling, capable, world-conquering business men.

In all probability we will be unable to wipe out the "hurry-up lunch" for many years to come, but we can at least combat the evils wrought by the practice. Our recipe is simple, economical and effective. Buy a package of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets; carry them in your pocket; and as the last gulp of milk chases the last chunk of refractory pie down your esophagus, swallow one tablet.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets prevent and cure stomach trouble by supplying the one element, the absence of which in the gastric juices, causes indigestion and dyspepsia. They enable the stomach to digest all kinds of food and to quickly convert it into rich, red blood.

Our proposition is not merely to sell you dyspepsia tablets, but to sell you a cure for your dyspepsia and indigestion. If Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets do not effect this cure, we give you back your money. That shows how much confidence we have in this new remedy.

Price 25 cents per large package. Sold only at our store or by mail.

RHEUMATISM
NOT A SKIN DISEASE.

It is natural to rub the spot that hurts, and when rheumatic pains are shooting through the joints and muscles and they are inflamed and sore, the sufferer is apt to turn to liniments and plasters for relief; and while such treatment may quiet the pain temporarily, no amount of rubbing or blistering can cure Rheumatism, because it is not a skin disease, but is in the blood and all through the system, and every time you are exposed to the same conditions that caused the first attack, you are going to have another, and Rheumatism will last just as long as the poison is in the blood, no matter what you apply externally. Too much acid in the blood is one cause of Rheumatism; stomach troubles, bad digestion, weak kidneys and torpid liver are other causes which bring on this painful disease, because the blood becomes tainted with the poisonous matter which these organs fail to carry out of the system. Certain secret diseases will produce Rheumatism, and of all forms this is the most stubborn and severe, for it seems to affect every bone and muscle in the body. The blood is the medium by which the poisons and acids are carried through the system, and it doesn't matter what kind of Rheumatism you have, it must be treated through the blood, or you can never get permanently rid of it. As a cure for rheumatic troubles S. S. S. has never been equalled. It doesn't inflame the stomach and ruin the digestion like Potash, Alkalies and other strong drugs, but tones up the general health, gently stimulates the sluggish organs, and at the same time antidotes and filters out of the blood all poisonous acids and effete matter of every kind; and when S. S. S. has restored the blood to its natural condition, the painful, feverish joints and the sore and tender muscles are immediately relieved.

"Christmas on the Stage"

Is the title of a most interesting story in the Christmas Metropolitan Magazine, cleverly told by Gustav Kobbé, who seems to live and breathe in the theatrical world, and knows the people of the stage, their lives and their ways, better than anyone else. He tells in an absorbingly entertaining way of how the stage folk celebrate Christmas; how Richard Mansfield and others provide entertainment and gifts for their whole company; how Annie Russell remembers her associates. FOOTBALL PLANS FOR TOMORROW

Wisconsin Will Make Every Effort Possible To Defeat the Gophers.

There's a bit of a brace in the atmosphere at Madison regarding the prospect for the Wisconsin game Thursday. The reason is not apparent, but it is the historical fact that the Badgers have never been defeated by the Gophers on the Madison gridiron, no matter how far superior the "dope" dishers had chalked up the Minnesota team. Somehow or other Wisconsin has always been able to win out when this game has been played at Madison. It is also true that when the game has been played on Northrop field or in any Minneapolis lot the result has been with few exceptions been adverse to the Badger wish.

Wisconsin is not taking hard work in preparation for the game, all the training being prepared for the purpose of merely keeping the men on edge without getting them over-trained, and also to get the signals so well practiced that there may be no mishaps or misunderstandings. The little field practice that is being given this week is directed mainly at signals and the catching of punts. In the matter of fumbles, dropping of punts, mistaken signals and other misfortune Wisconsin has been particularly punished this year, these features causing the tie by Northwestern and largely contributing to the high scores, if not, in fact, being responsible for the defeats by Chicago and Michigan. Coach Curtis is particularly desirous that misfortune shall not contribute to the result Thursday.

GOT INTO JAIL IN WINDY CITY

Two Janesville Boys Have a Difficult Time in the Big City of Chicago.

It is said that two Janesville boys, roused to the wild and wickedness of the great city of Chicago got into such serious trouble while visiting there a short time ago that the police mistook them for hardened criminals and sent them both to the house of correction for long terms. In default of payment of fines, James Gregory and Bert Dudley are the two youths who are said to have had the sad experience with the minions of the law of the Illinois city. It is alleged that the boys visited Chicago and were arrested for a trivial offense; were found guilty of the charges brought against them and were sentenced to a term in the house of correction for a long term in default of payment. Gregory's father is said to have come to his son's rescue and he is now free and at home again. A switch key in Gregory's pocket is said to have complicated matters considerably.

AGREE ON PEACE TERMS IN STREET-CAR STRIKE

Representatives of Both Sides Make Concessions and Decide to Arbitrate Differences.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—The strike on the Chicago City Hallway system is virtually over. At 1:30 o'clock this morning Mayor Harrison, who, with the aid of a mediation committee, had been in conference with representatives of both sides for ten hours, announced that the agreement effected would be presented to a mass meeting of the men. The mayor declared that neither side had won, but that both company and strikers through their lawyers had made concessions which promised complete peace.

The terms of the contract, as drawn up by the lawyers and approved by the mayor and aldermen, include the following important points:
1. The company will retain in its employ all strikers—no matter of what union and without regard to their participation in a sympathetic walkout.
2. The company and men agree to submit to an arbitration tribunal the question of retaining strikers who are accused by the company of having committed acts of violence, or of active participation in recent disturbances which obstructed the operation of the cars.

3. The wage scale will be arbitrated by three individuals selected by the men and company. One arbitrator will be chosen by the union, a second by the company and the third will be appointed by the two thus designated. The present rate of 24 cents an hour will not be entirely disregarded by the arbitrators, but by mutual consent it will not become a basis for a final opinion of the board.

MESSMER IS TO HEAD MILWAUKEE DIOCESE

Appointment of the Green Bay Prelate to Be Archbishop Meets With Favor.

Rome, Nov. 25.—The report that the congregation of the propaganda has decided to propose to the pope the appointment of Bishop Sebastian Gebhard Messmer of Green Bay, Wis., as archbishop of Milwaukee in succession to the late Archbishop Katzer is confirmed.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 25.—Roman Catholics here are much pleased with the selection of Bishop Messmer of Green Bay to succeed Archbishop Katzer. Father Augustin Schinner, administrator of the Milwaukee diocese, who was prominently mentioned himself for the succession, said:
"I expected the selection of Bishop Messmer all the time. I have no doubt he will be welcome here. He is a man of great ability."

H. J. Desmond, editor of the Catholic Citizen, said: "The appointment of Bishop Messmer is not surprising. He may be looked upon as logically in line for such promotion. From personal acquaintance I have learned to esteem him highly. He is notably interested in all those movements which aim at the moral, intellectual and social improvement of the laity. In those matters where there are chances for difference of opinion Bishop Messmer always has been classed with the conservative element."

"It is a very good choice," said Very Rev. Joseph Rainer, rector of the Seminary at St. Francis. "Bishop Messmer is a learned man and a progressive one. While he has not received unanimous support in this diocese, the difference of opinion has not been vital, and all will be pleased at the selection."
